TypeRight®

THE TYPERIGHT METHOD

TypeRight tutors work with individual learners that have a real desire or need to learn to type without looking at either the keyboard or the screen.

This facilitates a skill to take notes in classes or lectures whilst looking and listening directly at the speaker. It also facilitates copy typing from printed materials or audio typing from pod casts or live media.

Our proven Method involves learners initially following a software programme on screen with audio support and individual monitoring and then progressing to bespoke resources that progressively encourage the learner's ability to think and type simultaneously.

THE BEST SOFTWARE

The English Type software programme is used exclusively in TypeRight Clubs as the best introduction and learning aid to this important life skill.

Developed by an Educational Psychologist it is particularly well conceived to both educate and enthral learners as they set out on this exciting and life changing journey.

TypeRight are at the leading edge of the debate concerning the use of lap tops in the classroom and are in regular conference with teachers of learners with SEND including Dyslexia, Dyscalculia Dyspraxia and ADD.

CLIENT FEEDBACK

"Amanda Gush has run a touch typing club at Falcons Preparatory School for Boys for two years. Her club is always full and she has now had to open an early morning one as well. The boys appreciate her calmness and her expert knowledge. She knows exactly where each of the boys are in their touch typing and what they need to do to improve. Many of her students are now using their laptops for longer pieces of written work.

In addition, she has many good ideas for how to help the boys use a laptop in the classroom. We now have half a dozen dyslexic boys in Year 6 all able to use a laptop in class because of Amanda's teaching. As a result they have gained in confidence and they are able to produce work that reflects their ability. She has made a huge difference to many boys in our school."
